The Elder tree is indigenous to Europe. In that region's herbal folklore, all parts of the Elder plant - the berries, leaves and flowers - have a long history of use. Elder Flowers, for example, are a traditional winter season remedy, known for supporting immune and respiratory health. The flowers are a source of health-promoting flavonoids. In addition, they have a purifying effect on the body and help facilitate the removal of toxins.*

Common uses include:

- Support immune system health*
- Support healthy breathing*
- Support healthy bronchial passages*
- Cleanse and purify the system*
